Parashas Beshalach "The Day that the Depths Turned to Dry Land"

Rabbi Yehudah HaLevi is rightly considered the "Poet Laureate" of the Jewish People and of Jewish History. This is one of his great poems that has found its way into the liturgy of the Jewish People. It is sung on the Seventh Day of Pesach, the Day on which HaShem performed the great miracle of splitting the Red Sea for the Jewish People, which we read about in this week's Parashah, and the day that a Jewish baby boy is circumcised, the Day of his "Brit-Milah." The following is a translation of the immortal poem:

The day the depths turned to dry land, the redeemed ones sang a new song. (The "new song" refers to the "Shirah," the song in which Moshe led the Jewish men and Miriam led the Jewish women, following the Splitting of the Sea, but also, according to Jewish Tradition, refers to the future, when a "new song" will be sung upon the arrival of the "Mashiach.")

Because of her deceitfulness, You caused the Anamite (Egypt is called the Anamite because Anamim was a son of Mitzrayim, the ancestor of Egypt) daughter's feet to sink; but the footsteps of the wholesome one were beautiful in shoes -

All who see Yeshurun (a title representing Israel in its state of righteousness and spiritual exaltation, based on "yashar," upright) will sing in My Majestic Home: "There is none like the G-d of Yeshurun, and our enemies are the judges" -

May you raise our banners over the survivors; (this term, "survivors" has taken on new and special meaning in the era of the Holocaust; to Rabbi Yehudah HaLevi, it meant the survivors of Jewish History) and may You gather the scattered ones as one gathers sheaves -

Those who come with You into the covenant of your seal, and from the womb they are circumcised for Your Name's sake -

Display their signs to all who see them, and on the corners of their garments they will make fringes -

Whose is this Torah, inscribed with Commandments? - Please recognize the truth! Whose is the signet and whose are the threads? (The reference is to the account in Chapter 38 of Bereshit of the relationship between Tamar and her father-in-law, Yehudah, who saved her life when she was about to be burnt for the crime of living with a man outside the family of Yehudah, by admitting that he was the one by whom Tamar was pregnant. In this context, the song asks HaShem to recognize that it is His Torah for which the Jewish People has shed rivers of blood, and for which it has shown undying loyalty.) -

Betroth her again, and drive her out no more; let her sunlight rise and let the shadows flee -

The beloved ones exalt You, with song they come and greet You; who is like You, HaShem, among the mighty ones -

For the sake of the forefathers may You save the offspring and bring redemption to their children's children.

The redeemed ones sang a new song.

In our time, we ask the Almighty to "betroth us once again," to "raise the banners" of our salvation, assist us as we try to unite our People, not drive us out of His Holy Land, but rather allow us to prove our loyalty, and restore the Temple to Yerushalayim, the Holy City, where we will sing a new song and "serve You in reverence, as in days of old, and ancient years."

L'Iluy Nishmas beni, Aharon Baruch Mordechai ben Pinchas Menachem
