Parashas Bo The Definitive Answer

In Parashas Bo, Moshe receives HaShem's definitive answer to his question, that he posed at the end of Parashas Shemos, "My Lord, why have You done evil to this people, why have you sent me? From the time I came to Pharaoh to speak in Your Name, he did evil to this people, but You did not rescue Your people!" (Shemos 5:22-23) At the beginning of Parashas Vaera, HaShem rebuked Moshe gently for apparently lacking the faith of the Avos, when they encountered great frustration in their lives. But when he posed the question, Moshe did receive the beginning of an answer:

"HaShem said to Moshe, 'Now you will see what I will do to Pharaoh, for through a strong hand will he send them out, and with a strong hand he will drive them from his land.'" (Shemos 6:1) At that time, however, the time was not yet ripe for full redemption. But now, the time had come.

At the beginning of Parashas Bo, HaShem says to Moshe, "Come to Pharaoh..." – He does not say, "Go to Pharaoh" – perhaps because HaShem will also be there, in a sense over and above His Presence everywhere, Omnipresence; "There is no place where He is not." He wished now to be directly and Personally Present when the final confrontation would take place between the evil Pharaoh and His messenger, Moshe. HaShem also wanted the end of the Egyptian Exile to be a profoundly educational experience for all generations of Jews – "and in order that you may relate in the ears of your son and your son's son..." (Shemos 10:2), for all time, "...that I made a mockery of Egypt... that you may know that I am HaShem." (ibid.) This transcendental experience of Redemption would implant within them an unshakeable faith in HaShem that would last for thousands of years until the promise of "And I will bring you into the Land..." (Shemos 6:8) would be fulfilled.

The parashah begins to relate the account of the plague of locusts, but is interrupted by an attempt by the servants of Pharaoh to intervene - "...Send out the men that they may serve their G-d! Do you not know that Egypt is lost?" (Shemos 10:7) Pharaoh attempts to cooperate, but when he asks "Which ones are going?" (Shemos 10:8), Moshe raises the ante, and responds, "...With our youngsters and with our elders shall we go; with our sons and with our daughters, with our flock and with our cattle shall we go, because it is a festival of HaShem for us." (Shemos 10:9) Pharaoh is infuriated and the result is, "And he drove them out from Pharaoh's presence." (Shemos 10:11)

After the locust-swarm struck Egypt, Pharaoh was contrite and said, "...I have sinned to HaShem, your G-d, and to you. And now, please forgive my sin just this time, and entreat HaShem, your G-d, that He remove from me only this death." (Shemos 10:16-17). But the sum of cruelty and evil of Pharaoh made it impossible for him to do "Teshuvah." The account of the plague of locusts ends as follows: "But HaShem strengthened the heart of Pharaoh, and he did not send out the Children of Israel" (Shemos 10:20).

The ninth plague – the plague of tangible darkness; "No man could see his brother, nor could anyone arise from his place...but for the Children of Israel, there was light where they lived." (Shemos 10:23) Now Pharaoh conceded that the entire People of Israel could go to celebrate with their G-d; only their sheep and cattle had to remain in Egypt as a guarantee that the people would return. But Moshe would have none of it. He demanded, "Even you will place in our hands feast-offerings and elevation-offerings... for from it shall we take to serve HaShem, our G-d...Pharaoh said to him, 'Go from me!...' (the opposite of HaShem's command, "Come to Pharaoh," discussed above) "Beware – do not see my face anymore, for on the day that you see my face, you shall die! Moshe said, 'You have spoken correctly. I shall never seek your face again!'" (Shemos 25-26, 28-29)

"Moshe said, 'So said HaShem, 'At about midnight I shall go out in the midst of Egypt. Every firstborn in the land of Egypt shall die, from the firstborn of Pharaoh, who sits on his throne, to the firstborn of the maidservant ... There shall be a great outcry in the entire land of Egypt, such as there has never been and such as there never shall be again... But against the Children of Israel, no dog shall whet its tongue, against neither man nor beast, so that you shall know that HaShem will have differentiated between Egypt and Israel'" (Shemos 11:4-7).
